

Piet Nibbelink Relationship Clinics
Hosted by Heidi Potter Horsemanship and the New England Center for Horsemanship, Guilford, Vermont
May 3-5 & September 27-29 2017

"The most important thing is your control of your own state of mind."

"Body language is directed by how you feel and your state of mind."

"Happiness is inviting, wanting is not."

"It's not a method, it's a way of being."

Inspiration & Education Promised!

Piet travels from his native Netherlands to spend 6 days of relationship training with us. Both clinics are full for participating w/a horse but open to two forms of auditing.

These 3-day groundwork clinics include discussions, interactive exercises with humans and playing with horses, primarily at liberty. Improve your self-awareness & learn the subtleties of body language needed to truly understand and communicate mindfully with your equine partner.

Don't miss this chance to discover "the missing link" in your horsemanship and forever change the relationship you share with your equine partner. To learn more or to register visit www.heidipotter

Meet Piet Nibbelink

Throughout his life Piet always felt a close relationship with nature. He was introduced to horses as a child and rediscovered them as an adult. While focused on competition Piet realized that the performance was becoming more important than the pleasure of being with his horse. The turning point in his horsemanship came when he saw Klaus Ferdinand Hempfling, a master in communicating with horses. Piet became painfully aware of his own shortcomings in the relationship with his own horse. Klaus's work showed him a pathway to better methods of dealing with horses. Going through a lot of highs and lows, he discovered that only through developing himself could he gain the insights needed to grow personally and as a horseman. This growth resulted in his ability to improve the relationship and communication he shared with all horses.. For more about Piet visit:
